Covered Employers and Health Plans	Group health plans (fully insured and self-funded) maintained by private-sector, state and local government employers with 20 or more employees . However, group health plans sponsored by the federal government or by churches are exempt from COBRA.	Idaho does not have its own law regarding continuation coverage. Thus, employees' rights to continuation coverage are generally determined solely under federal law (COBRA). However, health insurance issuers that offer or maintain group major medical disability policies in Idaho must make a current group or individual policy available, without imposing underwriting criteria, to covered individuals or dependents following the expiration (or the insured's refusal) of COBRA coverage or otherwise upon termination of group coverage. When offering these benefits, the issuer is required to offer equal or lesser benefits than the insured has under his or her existing policy.
Qualified Beneficiaries	An employee, spouse or dependent child covered by a group health plan on the day before a qualifying event. In addition, any child born to or placed for adoption with a covered employee during the period of COBRA coverage is considered a qualified beneficiary.	No provision – Idaho does not have its own continuation coverage law.
Qualifying Events	Events that trigger an obligation to offer COBRA coverage include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Termination of employment for reasons other than gross

Maximum Continuation Period	The maximum duration of COBRA coverage depends on the type of qualifying event, as follows: 18 months - Employment termination or reduction in hours of work 29 months - The Social Security Administration (SSA) determines the qualified beneficiary is disabled during the first 60 days of COBRA coverage. This 11-month extension applies to the qualified beneficiary with the disability and all of the qualified beneficiaries in the family. 36 months - Divorce or legal separation, employee's death, entitlement to Medicare or loss of dependent child status 36 months - After a qualifying event that is an employment termination or a reduction in hours of work, a second qualifying event occurs that is the death of the employee, the divorce or legal separation of the covered employee and spouse, Medicare entitlement (in certain circumstances) or loss of dependent child status under the plan.	No provision – Idaho does not have its own continuation coverage law.

Early Termination of Coverage	Coverage begins on the date that coverage would otherwise have been lost because of a qualifying event and will end at the end of the maximum period. It may end earlier if: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Premiums are not paid on a timely basis; • The employer ceases to maintain any group health plan; • After the COBRA election, coverage is obtained with another employer group health plan (including any group health plan of a governmental employer); or • After the COBRA election, a beneficiary becomes entitled to Medicare benefits. 	No provision – Idaho does not have its own continuation coverage law.
Notice Requirements	Health plan administrators must provide an initial general notice when group health coverage begins. When a qualifying event occurs, health plan administrators must provide an election notice regarding rights to COBRA continuation benefits to each qualifying beneficiary who loses plan coverage in connection with the qualifying event. Qualified beneficiaries must respond to this notice and elect COBRA coverage by the 60th day after the written notice is sent or the day health care coverage would end, whichever is later. Additional COBRA notice requirements apply under federal law.
Premium Rules	The maximum amount charged to qualified beneficiaries cannot exceed 102 percent of the plan’s total cost of coverage for similarly situated individuals. For qualified beneficiaries receiving the 11-month disability extension, the premium for those additional months may be increased to 150 percent of the plan's total cost of coverage.
