

Genex Crisis Response Solution

Thousands of employees experience violence in their workplaces every year. In fact, workplace violence is the second leading cause of occupational injury.¹ When a traumatic workplace event occurs, what can you do to help employees recover emotionally?

Our Crisis Response Solution is a national disability prevention program that helps employers and payers support the victims and witnesses of traumatic workplace incidents, including robberies, assaults, deaths, severe injuries, and natural disasters. Located across the United States, our team of crisis specialists is comprised of uniquely trained clinicians who are Genex employees.

Crisis specialists work to provide “psychological first aid” to normalize the event and to identify individuals who may be at risk for psychological conditions. Debriefing sessions can take place face-to-face, by phone or video conference. If necessary, our specialists will coordinate referrals for appropriate services to prevent the development of more chronic conditions.

Crisis Response in Action: Workplace Shooting

When Tragedy Occurs

Enlyte received a call to the crisis hotline following a fatal workplace shooting. An employee had entered his workplace and randomly shot a dozen of his co-workers. The victims were transported to several area hospitals and the employer was not able to locate all of their employees after the incident.

Jump into Action

We immediately dispatched three Crisis Specialists who were on site within 24 hours of the shooting. They worked in coordination with the employer's employee assistance program, and over the next three days, our crisis specialists met with and assisted over 80 employees, some in groups, others individually as warranted.

Support for the Victims

Because this was a crime scene, the police would not release the names of the injured victims, even to the employer. While our crisis specialists worked with the employees who witnessed the shooting, our catastrophic case managers headed to each hospital and were able to locate and identify all of the hospitalized employees, providing important status reports to the claims manager and the employer. Our local catastrophic team made daily visits to provide support to the victims and their families with daily communication to the claims manager and carrier nurse case manager. All injured and impacted employees successfully returned to work.

LARGE SCALE EVENTS

Our Crisis Response Program provides a rapid response to mass casualty catastrophic events involving three or more impacted individuals. These events can include workplace shootings, explosions, and building/structural collapse. Features of the program include:

- Rapid response through early responder triage
- Early deployment of multiple crisis specialists
- Ability to set and provide intake for telephonic support line
- Infrastructure to support frequent strategic communication and reporting channels
